RECREATION IN SNOQUALMIE

Snoqualmie is in the heart of the Mountains to Sound Greenway, a beautiful stretch of corridor along Interstate 90. The city takes an active role as stewards of this region in preserving the land and providing areas for residents and visitors to experience the Upper Snoqualmie Valley at its best.

The City of Snoqualmie Parks & Recreation Department operates 38 parks including athletic fields, sport courts, tennis courts, a variety of play equipment for all ages, picnic shelters, and special event venues. Some of the more notable parks are Snoqualmie Point Park, Jeanne Hansen Community Park, Snoqualmie Community Park, and Centennial Fields.

There are approximately 30 miles of hard-surface and soft-surface trails in Snoqualmie for walking, hiking, biking and horse riding. Many Snoqualmie parks and trails connect to regional trails such as the Snoqualmie Valley Trail, Rattlesnake Mountain Trail, and Preston-Snoqualmie Trail. Snoqualmie has 540 acres of open space including Three Forks Natural Area, Meadowbrook Farm, and areas throughout the city.

SNOQUALMIE COMMUNITY CENTER

The Snoqualmie Community Center / Snoqualmie Valley YMCA offers activities that emphasize healthy living and youth development. Located on Snoqualmie Ridge at 35018 SE Ridge Street, it is a gathering place for people throughout the Snoqualmie Valley and provides a wide range of programs for all ages. The facility includes a cardiovascular and strength area, gymnasium, wellness studios for classes such as dance and yoga, a Youth Development Center, and community meeting rooms. Programs are offered for members and non-members. Financial assistance is also available.

CITY GOVERNMENT AND SERVICES

The City of Snoqualmie City Council, Mayor, Administration, and staff are committed to providing residents, businesses, and tourists with the highest level of service and personal attention. Citizens are encouraged to visit City Hall for centralized city services, to attend public meetings, view public art, and tour the building.

Each year the City Council and Administration revisit goals and objectives to serve the community. Enhancing the quality of life in Snoqualmie is always at the top of the list. This is accomplished by focusing on public safety services and programs, outdoor and recreational opportunities, planned development and conservation, infrastructure improvement and maintenance, economic development initiatives, and support of local businesses.

Snoqualmie is governed by a mayor and seven city council members with numerous advisory boards and commissions such as the Parks Board, Planning Commission, Arts Commission, Economic Development Commission, and others. Citizens have many opportunities to be involved. More information is on the city website at cityofsnoqualmie.org. To learn more about services, city business, programs, and events, call 425.888.1555, visit cityofsnoqualmie.org, or email info@ci.snoqualmie.wa.us.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Snoqualmie seeks to continually improve the economic well-being of the community by helping develop, recruit, and retain businesses that provide a stable tax base. Economic development includes job creation, economic diversification, productivity of property, and recognition of local products. Meeting these goals will support tax base growth, which city government relies on to provide city services to residents, business owners, and tourists.

Businesses in Snoqualmie range from retail stores, restaurants, and professional and health services to major corporations in many different industries. There are many companies that have large employee populations in the Snoqualmie Ridge Business Park. Other large employers include the Snoqualmie Valley Hospital, Snoqualmie Valley School District, Snoqualmie Casino, Salish Lodge & Spa, and the City of Snoqualmie.

EDUCATION

The Snoqualmie Valley School District provides outstanding public education to approximately 6,600 students in nine schools - plus a High School Online Program and a Parent Partnership Program. Snoqualmie Valley schools offer students a comprehensive educational experience with a broad range of rigorous academics, career and technical training, music, sports, arts, leadership and many other activities. In recent years, the district has infused technology throughout classrooms to engage students in learning, expanding its programs in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM). Recognized for performing in the top 5% of schools in the state, a number of Snoqualmie Valley schools continue to earn the Washington Achievement Award each year. (www.svsd410.org)

Many excellent colleges and universities are located within a short commute. Bellevue College is 17 miles west on I-90. It is the third largest institution of higher learning in Washington. The University of Washington, Seattle Pacific University and Seattle University is only 30 miles west of Snoqualmie.

Scenic beauty. Small-town charm. A growing and vibrant community.

Snoqualmie is 25 miles east of Seattle in King County. It is best known for Snoqualmie Falls, a stunning 268-foot waterfall that attracts visitors from around the world. With boundless recreation and breathtaking scenery, the natural surroundings infuse Snoqualmie with vitality and tranquility at the same time.

While preserving the unique and historic character of downtown Snoqualmie, protecting the environment, and providing the high quality of life residents enjoy, the city also embraces a continually growing population.

Snoqualmie is the fastest growing city in Washington and has been for more than ten years.* The population has grown four-fold since the year 2000. Remarkably, census data shows that 35% of Snoqualmie's population is 18 years of age and under, the highest youth-to-adult ratio in King County. To that end, the city is very supportive of school district initiatives, new and expanded parks facilities, youth programs, and local human services organizations. (*U.S. Census Bureau)

The City of Snoqualmie is dedicated to making this community a leader in small city livability, environmental sustainability, tourism, and business growth.
